This year, AWIB's third annual Raising the Bar forum will highlight women who are making a name for themselves while protecting the public's interests. We will have the opportunity to engage in a meaningful dialogue with a notable panel, who will offer their perspectives on a profession in which Asian women are underrepresented, especially on the management level. What is it like to be in public service as a prosecutor? What are the challenges? How are they making a difference?

Moderator

Sandra Leung, General Counsel & Corporate Secretary
Bristol-Myers Squibb Company

Panelists

Cristina Park, Supervisor, Economic Crimes Unit, Bronx District Attorney's Office
Archana Rao, Deputy Chief, Special Prosecutors Bureau, Manhattan District Attorney's Office
Sabrina Thanse, Bureau Chief, Public Assistance Crimes Unit, Kings County District Attorney's Office
Rosemary Yu, Director, Immigrant Affairs Program, Manhattan District Attorney's Office

A program of Asian Women In Business
Sponsored by White & Case LLP
Supported by Asian American Bar Association of New York
